"THE FROSTED ROSE"

PERSONALITY

She speaks softly, as if the world might bruise under too much volume, her words often laced with a dry, cutting sarcasm that keeps others just far enough away. Beneath that guarded edge, however, lives a quiet, unwavering compassion—most evident in the way animals seem to trust her without question, as though they recognize something kindred in her spirit.

She moves through life with a strange, haunting beauty, the kind that lingers in the mind long after she's gone, equal parts enchanting and unsettling.

Though gentle and mild in demeanor, she is not without fault; impulse often guides her steps before reason can intervene. And when her carefully held composure finally fractures, the shift is unmistakable—her calm gives way to a fierce, unrelenting fury, swift and consuming as a storm breaking at sea.

RULES

- As a Bonus Action, you shape-shift into a Beast form that you have learned for this feature. You stay in that form for a number of hours equal to half your Druid level or until you use Wild Shape again, have the Incapacitated condition, or die. You can also leave the form early as a Bonus Action.
- You regain one expended use when you finish a Short Rest, and you regain all expended uses when you finish a Long Rest.
- While in a form, you retain your personality, memories, and ability to speak
- Your game statistics are replaced by the Beast's stat block, but you retain your creature type; Hit Points; Hit Point Dice; Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma scores; class features; languages; and feats. You also retain your skill and saving throw proficiencies and use your Proficiency Bonus for them, in addition to gaining the proficiencies of the creature. If a skill or saving throw modifier in the Beast's stat block is higher than yours, use the one in the stat block.
- You can't cast spells, but shape-shifting doesn't break your Concentration or otherwise interfere with a spell you've already cast.
- Your ability to handle objects is determined by the form's limbs rather than your own. In addition, you choose whether your equipment falls in your space, merges into your new form, or is worn by it.
- You gain a number of Temporary Hit Points equal to three times your Druid level, when you assume your Wild Shape Form.

BAG OF HOLDING PARTY INVENTORY

RULES

This bag has an interior space considerably larger than its outside dimensions—roughly 2 feet square and 4 feet deep on the inside. The bag can hold up to 500 pounds, not exceeding a volume of 64 cubic feet. The bag weighs 5 pounds, regardless of its contents. Retrieving an item from the bag requires a Utilize action.

If the bag is overloaded, pierced, or torn, it is destroyed, and its contents are scattered in the Astral Plane. If the bag is turned inside out, its contents spill forth unharmed, but the bag must be put right before it can be used again. The bag holds enough air for 10 minutes of breathing, divided by the number of breathing creatures inside.

Placing a Bag of Holding inside an extradimensional space created by a Heward's Handy Haversack, Portable Hole, or similar item instantly destroys both items and opens a gate to the Astral Plane. The gate originates where the one item was placed inside the other. Any creature within a 10-foot-radius Sphere centered on the gate is sucked through it to a random location on the Astral Plane. The gate then closes. The gate is one-way and can't be reopened.

[Level 10 Feature]

You've learned secrets from various magical traditions.

When you reach a Bard level (including this level) & the Prepared Spells number in the Bard Features table increases, you can choose any of your new prepared spells from the Bard, Cleric, Druid, & Wizard spell lists, & the chosen spells count as Bard spells for you.

In addition, when you replace a spell prepared for this class, you can replace it with a spell from those lists.

Counter Charm
[Level 7 Feature]

You can use musical notes or words of power to disrupt mind-influencing effects.

If you or a creature within 30 Ft of you fails a Save against an effect that applies the Charmed or Frightened condition, you can take a Reaction to cause the save to be rerolled, & the new roll has Advantage.

Superior Inspiration
[Level 18 Feature]

When you roll Initiative, you regain expended Bardic Inspiration uses until you have 2 if you have fewer than that.

Epic Boon
[Level 19 Feature]

You gain an Epic Boon feat or another feat of your choice for which you qualify.

Words of Creation
[Level 20 Feature]

You have mastered two of the Words of Creation: the words of life & death.

You therefore always have the Power Word: Heal & Power Word: Kill spells prepared.

When you cast either spell, you can target a second creature with it if that creature is within 10 Ft of the first target.

MOONWELL PILGRIM FEATURES

Magic Initiate
[Level 1 Feature]

You gain the following benefits. 2 Cantrips & 1 Level 1 Spell from the Druid spell list. You always have these spells prepared.

WIS is your spellcasting ability for this feat's spells.

You can cast the Level 1 spell once without a spell slot, & you regain the ability to cast it in that way when you finish a Long Rest.

You can also cast it using any spell slots you have.

Spell Change.
When you gain a new level, you can replace 1 of the spells you chose for this feat with a different spell of the same level from the chosen spell list.

College of Dance Features

Dazzling Footwork
[Level 3 Feature]

While you aren't wearing armor or wielding a Shield, you gain the following benefits.

Dance Virtuoso.
You have Advantage on any CHA (Performance) check you make that involves you dancing.

Unarmored Defense.
Your base AC equals 10 plus your DEX & CHA Mods.

Agile Strikes.
When you expend a Bardic Inspiration use as part of an action, a Bonus Action, or a Reaction, you can make 1 Unarmed Strike as part of that action, BA, or Reaction.

Bardic Damage.
You can use DEX instead of STR for the attack rolls of your Unarmed Strikes.

When you deal damage with an Unarmed Strike, you can deal Bludgeon damage equal to a roll of your Bardic Inspiration die plus your DEX modifier, instead of the strike's normal damage. This roll doesn't expend the die.

Leading Invasion
[Level 14 Feature]

When you are subjected to an effect that allows you to make a DEX Save to take only half damage, you instead take no damage if you succeed on the Save & only half damage if you fail.

If any creatures within 5 Ft of you are making the same DEX Save you can share this benefit with them for that save.

You can't use this feature if you have the Incapacitated condition.

Inspiring Movement
[Level 6 Feature]

When an enemy you can see ends its turn within 5 Ft of you, you can take a Reaction & expend one use of your Bardic Inspiration to move up to half your Speed.

Then one ally of your choice within 30 Ft of you can also move up to half their Speed using their Reaction.

None of this feature's movement provokes Opportunity Attacks.

Tandem Footwork
[Level 6 Feature]

When you roll Initiative, you can expend 1 Bardic Inspiration use if you don't have the Incapacitated condition.

When you do so, roll your Bardic Inspiration die; you & each ally within 30 Ft of you who can see or hear you gains a bonus to Initiative equal to the number rolled.

Additional Features

Spell Casting

Standard Rules

One Spell with a Spell Slot per Turn.

On a turn, you can expend only one spell slot to cast a spell.

This means you can't cast a spell with a spell slot using the Magic action & another one using a Bonus Action on the same turn.

Rituals.

Spells that have the Ritual tag in the Casting Time entry can be cast following the normal rules, or it can be cast as a Ritual.

The Ritual version of a spell takes 10 minutes longer to cast than normal, but it doesn't expend a spell slot.

Identifying an Ongoing Spell.

You can try to identify a non-instantaneous spell by its observable effects if its duration is ongoing.

To identify it, you must take the Study action & succeed on a DC 15 Int. (Arcana) check.

Combining Spell Effects.

The effects of different spells add together while their durations overlap.

In contrast, the effects of the same spell cast multiple times don't combine.

Instead, the most potent effect—such as the highest bonus—from those castings applies while their durations overlap.

The most recent effect applies if the castings are equally potent & their durations overlap.

Material Component Substitute.

If a spell doesn't consume its materials & doesn't specify a cost for them, a spellcaster can use a Component Pouch instead of providing the materials, or the spellcaster can substitute a Spellcasting Focus if the caster has a feature that allows it.

To use a Component Pouch, you must have a hand free to reach into it, and to use a Spellcasting Focus, you must hold it unless its description says otherwise.

Invalid Targets.

If you cast a spell on someone or something that can't be affected by it, nothing happens to that target, but if you used a spell slot to cast the spell, the slot is still expended.

If the spell normally has no effect on a target that succeeds on a saving throw, the invalid target appears to have succeeded on its saving throw, even though it didn't attempt one (giving no hint that the creature is an invalid target).

Otherwise, you perceive that the spell did nothing to the target.

Casting in Armor.

You must have training with any armor you are wearing to cast spells while wearing it.

You are otherwise too hampered by the armor for spellcasting.

A Clear Path to the Target.

To target something with a spell, a caster must have a clear path to it. It can't be behind Total Cover.

Targeting Yourself.

If a spell targets a creature of your choice, you can choose yourself unless the creature must be Hostile or specifically a creature other than you.

Areas of Effect.

Some spells cover an area called an area of effect. The area determines what the spell targets.

The description of a spell specifies whether it has an area of effect, which is typically one of these shapes: Cone, Cube, Cylinder, Emanation, Line, or Sphere.

Awareness of Being Targeted.

Unless a spell has a perceptible effect, a creature doesn't know it was targeted by the spell.

An effect like lightning is obvious, but a more subtle effect, such as an attempt to read thoughts, goes unnoticed unless a spell's description says otherwise.

Spell Casting

Class Rules

Druid Cantrips.

You know two cantrips of your choice from the Druid spell list.

Whenever you gain a Druid level, you can replace one of your cantrips with another.

When you reach Druid levels 4 & 10, you learn an additional cantrip.

Bard Cantrips.

You know two cantrips of your choice from the Bard spell list.

Whenever you gain a Bard level, you can replace one of your cantrips with another.

When you reach Bard levels 4 & 10, you learn an additional cantrip.

Multi-Class Cantrips.

If a cantrip of yours increases in power at higher levels, the increase is based on your total character level, not your level in a particular class, unless the spell says otherwise.

Druid Prepared Spells.

You prepare the list of spells that are available for you to cast. To start, choose four level 1 spells from the Druid spell list.

The number of spells on your list increases as you gain Druid levels.

The chosen spells must be of a level for which you have spell slots.

If another Druid feature gives you spells that you always have prepared, those spells don't count against the number of spells you can prepare with this feature, otherwise they count as Druid spells for you.

Bard Prepared Spells.

You prepare the list of spells that are available for you to cast. To start, choose four level 1 spells from the Bard spell list.

The number of spells on your list increases as you gain Bard levels.

The chosen spells must be of a level for which you have spell slots.

If another Bard feature gives you spells that you always have prepared, those spells don't count against the number of spells you can prepare with this feature, otherwise they count as Bard spells for you.

Multi-Class Available Spell Slots.

You determine your available spell slots by adding together the following:

- All your levels in the Bard, Cleric, Druid, Sorcerer, & Wizard classes.
- Half your levels (round up) in the Paladin and Ranger classes.
- One third of your Fighter or Rogue levels (round down) if you have the Eldritch Knight or Arcane Trickster subclass.

Changing Your Druid Prepared Spells.

Whenever you finish a Long Rest, you can change your list of prepared spells, replacing any of the spells with other Druid spells for which you have spell slots.

Changing Your Bard Prepared Spells.

Whenever you gain a Bard level, you can replace one spell on your list with another Bard spell for which you have spell slots.

Multi-Class Prepared Spells.

You determine what spells you can prepare for each class individually, as if you were a single-classed member of that class.

Each spell you prepare is associated with one of your classes, and you use the spellcasting ability of that class when you cast the spell.

Druid Spell Casting Modifier & Focus.

- Wisdom is your spellcasting ability for your Druid spells.
- You can use a Druidic Focus as a Spellcasting Focus for your Druid spells.

Bard Spell Casting Modifier & Focus.

- Charisma is your spellcasting ability for your Bard spells.
- You can use a Musical Instrument as a Spellcasting Focus for your Bard spells.

Circle Spells.

When you reach certain Druid levels, you gain a Circle Spell.

You thereafter always have the spell prepared.

Notes

DRAGON TYPE: WHITE; GL

BACKSTORY

Rose Rime was born beneath the mist-laced skies of the Moonshae Isles, her pink-red skin and frost-white hair marking her as something both beautiful and otherworldly from the start. Among a people who revered the land and its ancient spirits, she found belonging not in others, but in the quiet presence of the wild. Animals trusted her without question, and the sacred moonwells—those shimmering fonts of divine magic—seemed to hum in recognition when she drew near.

As a pilgrim of the moonwells, Rose wandered far beyond the comfort of home. She painted the rolling coasts and silver forests, collected folk songs that clung to the wind, and learned to weave primal magic into her voice and form. It was during these travels that her gift for transformation bloomed—her druidic wild shape blending seamlessly with a bard's sense of rhythm and performance. In those moments, she became something hauntingly beautiful: ice forming at her fingertips, petals spiraling through the air, her body shifting with an almost sacred grace.

But beauty, especially the kind that unsettles, does not go unnoticed.

She was taken—sold into a traveling carnival where wonder was bought and cruelty hidden behind velvet curtains. There, she became The Frosted Rose. Forced to perform, she danced beneath lanternlight, transforming in bursts of frost and drifting petals, her movements soft and mesmerizing. Crowds called her enchanting, majestic... divine. They never saw the chains behind the curtain, nor the quiet fury building beneath her gentle exterior.

The experience left its mark. Her voice grew softer, her sarcasm sharper—a shield to keep others at a distance. Yet her compassion endured, especially for creatures without a voice of their own. When she finally broke free, it was not with spectacle, but with a storm—her calm fracturing into something fierce and unstoppable.

In the years that followed, whispers of the Cult of the Absolute reached her—whispers that stirred something deep and unsettled within. She knows, in the way one knows a scar without remembering the wound, that she was once among their victims. But the memory itself is fractured, indistinct—like frost clouding glass. What remains is not clarity, but feeling: unease, quiet anger, and the lingering sense that something was taken from her.

Now, word spreads that former cultists are gathering near Neverwinter.

Rose Rime does not believe in coincidence.

She cannot say why the news unsettles her so deeply—only that it does. And so, guided more by instinct than memory, she takes up her pennywhistle and her magic and sets her path toward the city, drawn by a quiet, unresolved pull. Whether she seeks answers, vengeance, or something long buried within herself, even she does not know.
